

- a Rust Group company

Rust Training Services, a subsidiary of Rust Group, is the division of the Partnership specialising in a range of corporate training. It initially specialised in the provision of financial training on an international basis to property & property financing companies but has expanded this service to a much wider range of business to business services companies and financial institutions, particularly banks.

Rust Group and its associates provide corporate finance and legal and commercial advice and training to companies in the UK and abroad, especially in the USA and Eastern Europe, including Russian and CIS countries.

In the past decade, the Partnership has deepened its client base and extended the range of activities to include the provision of training and workshop facilities to a range of banks including the World Bank (IFC), EIB, Calyon, Deutsche Bank, HSBC, RBS and several other financial and commercial organisations for credit assessments, ratings advisory and other specialist subjects.

Rust Group has also provided credit analysis training for industrial companies both generally and within specific industry sectors e.g. airlines and power generation.

In particular, drawing on expertise of the founding partners, Rust Group has demonstrated an ability to manage the real estate credit training of a variety of banks, often adapting the content and delivery, during the presentation, so as meet the individual learning requirements of the delegates.

Drawing upon a team of experienced trainers and facilitators, Rust Training Services provides skilled conference speakers and trainers employing a wide range of financial and analytical skills.

Separately, Rust Group also serves as an advisor to a major rating agency and the Global Association of Risk professionals (GARP), in the areas of interpretation of IFRS, real estate and advanced corporate risk analysis.
